First Adam Smith Memorial Lecture

“ I am returning to Bhubaneswar after many many years and I have to say it is a great pleasure to be back especially on this occasion which is to do with a University in a very difficult area and I really congratulate Prof. Surabhi Banerjee, the Vice Chancellor of the University for her dynamism and tenacity and interest to take up a University in such area.”

Prof. (Dr.) Kaushik Basu, Chief Economic Advisor to the Ministry of Finance, GoI delivering the First Adam Smith Memorial Lecture

"This is a lecture in memory of Adam Smith, one of the real Gurus in my field of Economics. He wrote profusely for I know as a person led a relatively boring and dull life".

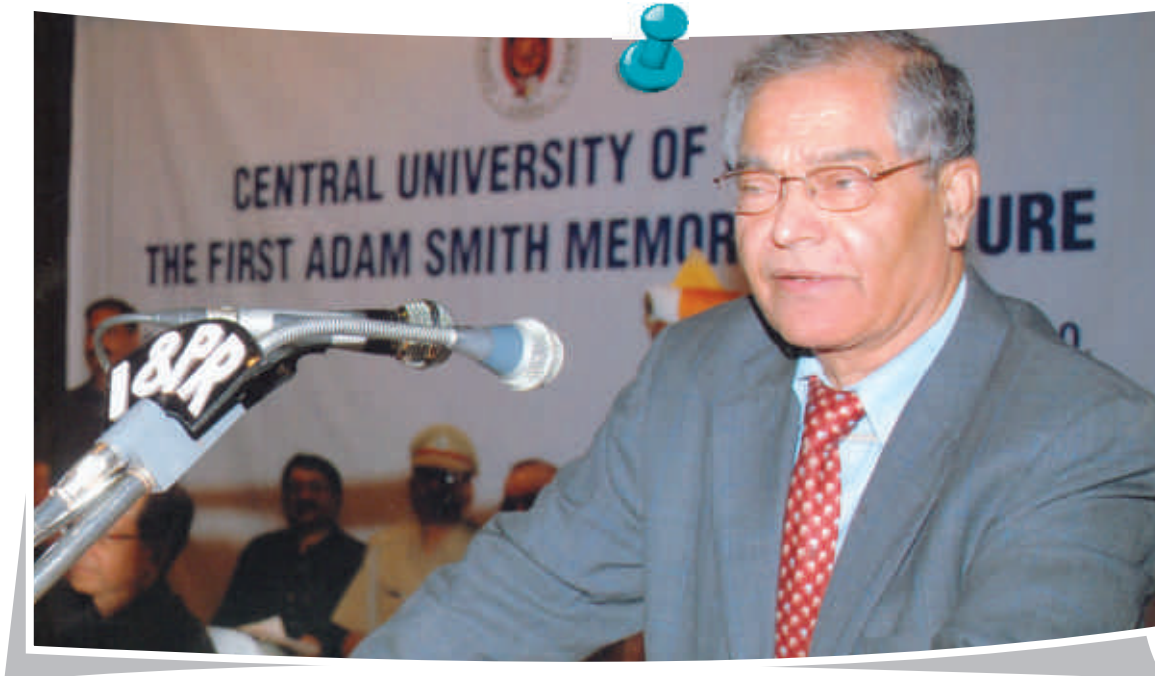

But this was the life in the mind which produced some of the most striking pieces of work through his long life. Two of them which are indeed the too famous books of Adam Smith, The Theory of Moral Sentiments in 1759 and The Wealth of Nation in 1776. About the only exciting thing in Adam Smith's life was the incident that happened when he was of four or five years old when he was kidnapped by some gypsies which was a traumatic time for Adam Smith as a kid and he was rescued by his uncle and back again to the society and I often think that the sudden appearance of the 'invisible hand' of the gypsies making him vanish to the kidnapped state, will may have had some psychological role in the important idea of the 'invisible hand' with which we associate Adam Smith."

"If you will look at the growth rate of different states of India over the last ten years, Orissa is among the four fastest growing States in the country. Really this is the wonderful views that the region has a huge historical importance of the country and the period of stagnation. Today it begins to grow rapidly."

Kaushik Basu is the Chief Economic Adviser to the Government, Ministry of Finance, India and Professor of Economics and the C. Marks Professor of International Studies, at Cornell University. Till recently he was Donald C. Opatrny '74 Chairman of the Department of Economics and before that Director of the Center for Analytic Economics at Cornell.

From the desk of the Vice-Chancellor

Dear Friends,

We are not on the same page any more. The annals of this new University are now veritably endowed with a tangible corpus and pages are turning really fast. Time's winged chariot is galloping and the University is making an extraordinary endeavour to daunt its inexorable pace.

Six months have whizzed past since the first Anniversary in August 2009. These six months have been choc-a-bloc with ceaseless academic and infrastructural expansion activities, Lectures, events, programmes and a chain of constructive meetings.

All Advisory Committees and Curriculum Development Committees on new subjects have been activated. From the forthcoming academic session the University proposes to introduce five new subjects under New Schools, as included in the Statutes, which have already been duly endorsed by the appropriate authority. The recruitment of Non-Teaching staff is on in phases according to our requirements. The recruitment of permanent Teaching Faculty is still awaiting the formalities of Visitor's nominees. It is likely to be held shortly.

As for the progress of our physical infrastructure of the main campus, the construction of the Boundary Wall is almost through and the construction of buildings in the first phase, the Girls' Hostel, the Boys' Hostel, the Guest House and the Academic Block I are likely to start towards the end of March.

Meeting Dr Manmohan Singh the Hon'ble Prime Minister of India at his office in Delhi, has indeed been an inspiring watershed for us. The University is immensely grateful to him for taking an active interest in the development of the Central University of Orissa in a very backward region in the country.

The dulcet bells of the historic First Convocation are already ringing. Fresh hope and benign promise are in the air, brightening the faces of the potential first graduands of this University located in this far-off, sequestered, and one of the most disadvantaged regions in the country. For the first batch of students' of CUO, the wheel comes full circle in 2011.

As a Founding Vice-Chancellor my vision of this composite University has two well-defined thrust areas in terms of priorities: One is healthcare and subsequently the introduction / dissemination of medical education and the other is related to the development and welfare of the tribal community.

The need for these priorities emanates from the roots which, if nurtured properly, would eventually develop wings of excellence across the globe.

Prof. (Dr.) Surabhi Banerjee

Infrastructural Development

Development of Campus (progress of the Boundary Wall)

The main campus of our University is coming up at Sunabeda. The construction of boundary wall undertaken by CPWD is in progress. Out of actual 9.3 kms of boundary wall about 8.6 kms work is completed. The pillar excavation, raising columns on rocky terrains of the boundary is almost over. The brickwork and plastering of the Boundary Wall is going on in full swing.

The master plan has also been approved by the University Building Committee. Recently the Chief Engineer of CPWD has visited our main campus in Koraput and inspected the progress of construction work.

Academic Programmes at the Central University of Orissa

In 2009, the Central University of Orissa started Master Programmes in following Schools and Centres:

School of Social Sciences

Sociology
Anthropology
Journalism and Mass Communication

School of Languages

English
Oriya

Besides, Central University of Orissa also initiated a Certificate Course on Skill Development Program for Tribals. The first batch of learners has already received training on Mushroom Cultivation. We are exploring the potential areas of intervention through which the unemployed tribal youth could be imparted Vocational Training and Education in income generating activities.

The Central University of Orissa is going to introduce a number of new Schools and Centres from the forthcoming Academic Session.

Student Support Services Developed by the University

In our endeavour to improve the quality of higher education. We are steadily developing student support services as follows:

A student having a look at the various magazines in display inside the Central Library of the Central University of Orissa

Library

As a part of support services we have established a Library with the collection of 9,000 volumes of textbooks and reference books. Books are already in circulation and students and faculty members are availing the benefit. An experienced Librarian along with the Faculty In-Charge, Library and Library Committee are monitoring the development of the Library.

Computer with Internet facility

The Central University of Orissa has made arrangements for net connectivity through BSNL broad-band services. About 30 terminals/portals are put into service of the residents and teachers. This service would enhance the interactive, communicative and knowledge addition at Central University of Orissa.

Commutation Facility

- ☑ The Central University of Orissa provides the commutation facility for the students, teachers and staff. Though the present CUO Campus is strategically and ideally located there are difficulties for commutation.
- ☑ Two buses are put into service to fetch the students from various destinations, viz: Jeypore – Koraput, Landiguda, Sunabeda and Semiliguda and the buses ply in converging directions.
- ☑ Enroute, the hostellers: both boys and girls, teachers, staff and non-resident students avail the commutation facility. This serves the purpose of discipline to time, class schedule and reading habits of both the students and the Faculty.

Residential Life of Students at Hostels

The Central University of Orissa is being designed to be a completely residential University. Braving the dearth of buildings in Koraput, the University has initiated the hostel life for the students by making temporary arrangements. Boys are being accommodated at Koraput and Dumuriput Hostels and Girls' Hostel is located at Semiliguda. Arrangement of hostel accommodation and related facilities have been an herculean task in view of the developing status of the place.

Centre for Tribal Welfare and Community Development

Extreme poverty has its own typical features and adverse impacts on any society. Migration in search of survival for livelihoods is gradually becoming a common phenomenon in the KBK region as well as in the other parts of the country. For the survival of local people, the traditional skill based occupations are gradually becoming uneconomic options. On the other hand the same traditional skills have a flourishing market value in neighbouring states. This creates situations for mass migration, often with the family, in search of a livelihood even under stressful conditions. In the recent trend of economic development, the traditional skill based occupations have also become largely resource dependent. With the depletion of natural resources, the traditional occupations of tribes are fading away, though these are also the outcome of the occupational mobility.

The Koraput District comes under the tribal sub-plan area and PESA. As per the provision, PESA promises devolution of power to Panchayats completing the tribal self-rule. While larger accountability for the utilizing the provisions under the Act is vested in the Panchayats, due to poor understanding of the Act by the Panchayatiraj functionaries the Act seems to have lost its legal tooth in this area. This calls for wider accountability of government and civil society bodies to build the capacity of the PRIs thereby enabling them to utilize the power and authority vested in them for the development of their area and the communities. The customary rules existing even today provide a framework to compare the provisions of PESA and a suitable blending of two can contribute towards good governance to spearhead developmental process.

According to the report of the Committee on the Constitution of Separate Development Board in Orissa, 96% of Community Development Blocks in KBK districts are either 'very backward' or 'backward'. According to the UNDP Human Development Report 2004, Malkangiri, Kandhamal, Gajapati, Koraput, Nabarangpur are the bottom five districts in terms of HDI values, three of which are in KBK region.

Considering the above issues, the Centre for Tribal Welfare and Community Development (CTWCD) has been established as University's first initiative of Corporate Social Responsibilities to foster the needs and take up the issues of the tribals of KBK region as well as other tribal groups of India.

The Centre for Tribal Welfare and Community Development at Central University of Orissa is functional since 5th June, 2010. A batch of tribal youth has already received training on mushrooms cultivation. New initiatives are under progress and it is hoped that various trade identified by the Centre will benefit the tribes.

The Centre organized a National Seminar in collaboration with Department of Culture, Koraput District in on “Challenges in Preservation & Development of Tribal Culture” on the occasion of PARAB-2010.
